Summary:

Presumably written by by Minister Israel Galili some time in 1970, this note discusses the publication of a story on Israel's nuclear program in the New York Times. According to the note, the story mentions "the agreement we have with the President," alluding to the 1969 Richard Nixon-Golda Meir deal on Israel's nuclear status. The note further attempts to analyze which source within the Nixon administration had approached the paper and leaked assessments on Israel's nuclear capabilities, underscoring the secrecy and the sensitivity surrounding the 1969 understanding.

Editor's note: Because of the unique provenance of this document, it should be treated as unauthenticated and interpreted skeptically. Readers are strongly encouraged to read the associated essay by Or Rabinowitz.

“There are a few possibilities:

1. The same circle that does not know about the agreement we have with the President.
2. The circle which knows and opposes the President’s position in this matter.
3. An attempt to reduce the tension that was created by the President and Kissinger’s statements opposing the Russian involvement and a call to attain a political solution (albeit by coercion) before Israel threw the entire region into an atomic war (namely Rogers and his friends).
